

THE PHILIPPINES

Adoption regulations in the Philippines have resulted in Christian Adoption Services, Inc. coordinating placements throughout the United States. If residing outside NC, an adoption agreement will need to be established with a direct service agency in your home state.

The approximate wait time is currently 18 to 24 months for the placement of children between the ages of 12 months and 15 years. There is to be 2 years of nurturance between the adopted child and any children currently in the adoptive family. Although applications are not being received for females under the age of 3 years, adoptive families are also being sought for school-age children and sibling groups of 3 or more. The InterCountry Adoption Board (ICAB) maintains its list of waiting parents by date of approval of the applicant's dossier. The assessed ability of the adoptive parents to respond to the specific needs of the child or children who are in need of placement is weighed heavily by ICAB.

Adoptive applicants are to be healthy, and at least 27 years of age with the maximum adoptive mother's age being no more than 45 years older than the child. Couples should be married for at least 3 years. Single women are currently being accepted into this program, yet for mostly older and special needs children. No applicant will be received if he/she has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. If applicants have children over the age of 10 years, those children will need to express in writing their support for their parents' adoption plan.

Upon receipt of the applicants' dossier, it is reviewed by the InterCountry Adoption Board (ICAB) with its assessment usually being known within 6-8 weeks. The waiting time for placement then begins.

Foreign adoption expenses are low in comparison to most intercountry programs since the government does subsidize a major portion of the adoption expenses. In addition, because English is widely spoken in the Philippines, the completed application and supportive documents do not need to be translated. Notarized or certified documents are required for the InterCountry Adoption Board dossier.

At least one adoptive parent is expected to travel to receive the child. The stay may be as brief as 3 - 5 days. Visa petitions are to be filed stateside with the applicants' nearest office of Citizenship and Immigration Services. Consequently, the child's visa will have been issued prior to the parent's arrival in Manila. Parents are encouraged to travel to their child's specific orphanage to receive their child there, thus minimizing the adjustment for the child.

The Philippines holds complete custody of the children it places for adoption for an initial supervisory period of six months. Once there is confirmation that the child and family are doing well in placement, the Affidavit of Consent will be released, thus allowing the child's adoption to be finalized in the U.S. The ICAB is requesting that the forthcoming Decree of Adoption be submitted to close the file.

The InterCountry Adoption Board welcomes adult adoptees to visit their country of birth. With advance notice, the ICAB will strive to acquire current birth parent information for adoptees who visit the Philippines.
